Conduct to be Censured.

Our attention was called by one of the policemen on yesterday to the practice indulged in by thoughless persons of giving arms to persons not of sound mind, merely to have sport. It is in direct violation of a city ordinace to tease them in any way and we think an officer would not be exceeding the bounds of duty in arresting per-sons for giving them arms.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CANASSES.

Mr. Maynard Demotishes his Competitor. At the appointed hour yesterday, a large number of voters assembled in the lower court room to hear the discussion between Hon. Horace Maynard and Col. Blizard, candidates for Congress. The discussion was opened by Col. Blizard who was introduced by Mr. Maynard. He said he was the .candidate of the Democratic party. Parties had changed since before the war, when we had a Democrotic party and a Whig party-The Whig party now has no existence. The Republican party as a great National party has had control of affairs for the last ten years. He was not here to discuss such question as had been submitted to the arbitrament of the swored. He would speak of the policy of the Republican party on the question of Reconstruction. The question had been decided by the highest tribunal known to man, that a State cannot secede from the Union. He then reviewed the course of the Republican party on the question of Reconstruction. After alluding to impeachment, he came to the reconstruction of Tennes see by a self-constituted convention. His com. petitor had said that the present State govern-ment had never been regarded by Congress. This question disposed of, he teok up the finan-cial question, and enlightened his audience on the subject of 5-20 bonds, speaking in no complimentary terms of the bond-holder. Congress had passed a law seven years after the bonds were issued, saying they must be paid in gold Ho read from other acts of Congress to show that the Republican party was in favor of the bondholder as against the tax-payer. He quoted from Gov. Martin, Senator Sherman, Gen. Butler, who as a statesman and a lawyer, stands at the head of the House of Representatives, to show that the bonds were to be paid in greenbacks. He then did up the banking system, for which he said the Republican party is responsible, and showed to his own satisfaction we presume, that it was a great swindle upon the country, and a species of class-legislation. He said there was nothing exempt from taxation except the bonds. Men would not invest money in industrial pursuits, because bonds were a better investment, consequently money was scarce. The tariff he said was a fair means of raising revenue if properly levied, but the present tariff was oppressive. He was in favor of a tariff, ad valorem equally levied, so as to not prove oppressive on any class. He said the railroad system was one of the greatest powers in the country, and spoke of the Republican party as favoring the great monapoly by subsidies of bonds and public land, the interest on the bonds being paid by digging the money out of the soil by the leading population. Tennessee had been overloaded in this This country is now oppressed worse than at any time since the days of her origin. The Republican party had paid to Massachusetts $678,000. while Tenneessee claimants have been neglected. The Internal Revenue system was then reviewed by the speaker, and its faults pointed out, in the same way as has been done by every Democratic cross-roads politician for years past, the burden of which was whisk y, whisky, whisky. FREE WHISKY.

The great danger now lies in the policy of concentrated government, disregarding the rights of the States. He appealed to the people to require their public servants to conform to the Constitution. He appealed to colored men, informing them that he was on the record in favor of their enfranchisement beyond the power | gia State Fair, over seven competitors, of any future legislature. He took his seat, not having been once applauded.

MR. MATNARD'S SPEECH.

Mr. Maynard then took the stand, being greeted with applause, the audience having evidently become wearied with the speech of his competitor. He was gratified to meet with so many of his fellow-men with whom he had been associated for a generation past. His competitor had said nothing against him personally. but the head and front of his offending was that he was a Republican and not a Democrat. His competitor was right when he said there were but two parties. Some time ago there was another party called the Conservative party, which was only a bridge over which Union men might pass at the eleventh hour into the Rebellion. He asked his colored friends if Col. B.'s was not the first democratic speech they had ever heard without hearing of the big buck nigger". The Democrats had met here some time ago to nominate a man to beat Maynard. He repeated the amusing process of "informing" the candidate, which he spoke of at Kingston, in which Gen. Vaughn, Col. Byrd and Dave Nelson each took a part, but it would'nt hit any one but his friend Col. Byrd. ville at 7 o'clock Monday morning, returning The arms of the Court were too long for Col. in the afternoon. This will give those desiring Jno. Williams, for according to Col. John to attend the speaking an opportunity of doing Baxter, some of them had very long arms-to get things-fine blooded lambs, sewing machines &c. His competitor was in favor of letting bygones be bygones, but the first thing he took up which had been settled. The principal part of aided by a recent decision of the Supreme Court of our State which is composed principally of original rebels. From what we could gather, they had recognized the Southern Confederacy, which was about the first time it had been recognized by anything claiming respectability. After alluding to this subject in a few well timed remarks, he turned his attention to the bond question, and ably defended the policy of the Republican party on this subject, successfully refuting the sophistries of his competitor. The bonds were used for patriotic purposes, and had been largely purchased by men of small means. The laws of Congress had only declared that the bonds were to be paid according to the original intent and meaning of the government that issued them. He was for national banks, and while his competitor was for wiping them out, he failed to say what he would put in their place. He called sophistries of which have been shown through the columns of the CHRONICLE, was fitly disposed of. The whisky question was discussed One would suppose from the speeches of Democratic politiciaus that the chief end of this government was to distil whisky and enjoy it forever. He had done what he could to mitigate fore they are all gone. the rigors of the law, but he would never favor a "whisky rebellion," such as had once cursed bread and meat. We pay in East Tennessee less than $150,000 in the Federal Treasury, while we received over $500,000 for pensions alone. His time having expired, he gave way to

COL, BLIZARD, Who followed in a rejoinder of thirty minutes. He was not in favor of a tariff at all on sugar, coffee or tea. He was in favor of tariffing leather, and everything not required to sustain life, according to its value. He went into dry argument, to show that the present tariff | East Tennessee. Goods in store insured at fair dissriminates against the agricultural interests rates. Particular attention given to dwelling of the country, all of which we failed to see. He made another onslaught on the "bloated bond- ings three times one year's rate will insure for holders," which fell "still-born" upon the au- five years, and double one years rate will insure dience. He said class Companies, and rates as lew as can be had his competitor had been a slave-holder, while he in the Companies. had not 5een, and seemed to think this a clincher. He disposed of the liquor and railroad questions in his way, and then retired, having excited no enthusiasm. He was slightly applauded by a half-dozen men one time.

ME. MAYNARD'S REJOINDER. Mr. Maynard followed in a rejoinder of thirty minutes. He defended Mr. Wisener and W. B. Staley, who had been charged by Col. Blizard with having been rebels. He most successfully refuted the charges made. He took up Col. B.'s to him, that as children were born barefooted, leather was as much of a necessity as anything accounts. else. The poll tax clause in the New Constitution, he charged, was a discrimination against the poor man, whether white or black. He discussed the whisky laws, and showed that the State laws were somewhat oppressive, as well as the Internal Revenue laws. His rejoinder and his original speech were most happy iu their effect, delighting his friends, and ominous of defeat to his enemies. This is the first time we have heard them together, and we fully concur in the universally expressed opinion that Col. Blizard is no match for Mr. Maynard in debate, and his effort only reminds us of a poor swimmer striving against a strong current. His friends were evidently disappointed with him yesterday, as he failed to excite the slightest enthusiasm. The court house was well filled yesterday, and we think there is no doubt but that at least two-thirds of them were for Maynard.

We say to our friends, work a few days and a sweeping victory is ours.
